

Assignment Tracker Problem Statement

Authors: Leighton Keenan, Claire Bishop, Kennedy Miller

Problem Statement:

- Many University students don't have enough tools or knowledge on how to manage their assignments, exams, and due dates effectively.

Who is experiencing the problem?

- Many students at the University of South Carolina and other universities are experiencing lack of organization in their daily lives.

What is the problem?

- Many university students will miss or forget about their assignments because of a lack of organization and receive poor grades.

Where does the problem present itself?

- The problem can present itself in situations such as students' grades in their classes. For example, a student forgets they had an assignment and receives a zero because they do not know how to organize their assignments in Google Calendar, Numbers, etc.

Why does it matter?

- Organizing assignments is important to receive excellent scores on assignments and to have a neat space to store all assignments. Knowing how to properly work a calendar or assignment tracker is essential to any college student's academic life.
